Race Opposition Combine to Fight Maryland Tracks

Balfimore, Md., March 8,-The egislature at Annapolis is expected to get busy on racetrack legislation early this week, and from the talk which has cropped up within the past few days, or since the Bowie track commission bill passed the house, there is to be some fight. Conferences between those opposed to racetrack betting and the advo racing commission bill will be held prevailing in the State and which several sessions of the general as-

In connection with the fight now going on there is criticism of the racetrack interests for their method of conducting their fight. They have sent out to lawyers in various parts of the State this year, just as they have done in times past, checks for retainer fees, some as small as. $50 for lawyers to "help frame racetrack legislation." How many votes may be gotten by this method is problematical, but the endeavor seem to be to bring about sentiment favorable to the tracks by the hiring of legal lights in the countles even where there are no tracks.

The ractrack owners do not want any referendum. They cannot pre-vent one on the racing commission bill if it is passed, but if that should be put up to a referendum by petition they would gain by a vote of rejection, as they would thereby es cape regulation and the tax of $6,000 a day the bill imposes.
